

SS Makes a Big Push for the Top, BD Holds Strong

Membership has a Lack-Luster Week; Full Swing MIP?

Effective date: 2015-11-10

If one thing has remained constant for the past several weeks, if not for this season entirely, it's the staying power BD has portrayed thus far. She is hanging on to the top spot with a strong grip and week after week she finds herself alone at the top. DP was a worthy challenger for the past several weeks, nipping at the heels and staying right on BD's tail. DP had a challenging week in Week 9—MIP perhaps?—but he remains in a tie for third place at only two games back. He remains very much a contender. Speaking of contenders, SS has been working his way back up the rankings, finding himself alone in second place this week. SS was in first place, either alone or tied, for the first four weeks, and has been three or fewer games back since then. Will SS overtake BD in Week 10? I don't know!!!!

As mentioned, SS was top winner this week, going 9-4 to propel himself upwards on a relatively slow week for the rest of membership. If this is the MIP, SS is fighting hard to counteract its woes. I would go so far as to say that Week 10 could be the most pivotal week so far this season. There have been many suitors in pursuit of the top spot and BD has successfully beat them back; but they're inching closer. Will she keep it up this week?

Happy Picking

JP